actives.

It would be well to remember that the best wheelman is he who is most mindful of the rights of others and not he who is most reckless in the enjoyment of himself. Everybody, on or off the wheel should be considerate of the convenience, comfort, and safety of everyone else. That is a good way to get along smoothly in this rough and tamble, work-a-day world.

and when negotiating the last turn an other cycler came down at a rattling rate of speed. A collision seemed inevitable, when the lone cycler obigingly tumbled off. He was badly shaken up bruised, scratched, and his wheel frame bent out of true. The three men whe had escaped damage through his martyrdom helped him to get in something like shape, and were most profess if their thanks for his taking on his own self all the damage. When he left on handed him a card and told him to send to that address the bill for the repair in his wheel.

THE LAW AND THE WHEEL

to that address the bill for the repairs to his wheel.

THE LAW AND THE WHEEL

"The use of the bicycle," says the Detroit, "for the purpose of locomotion and travel, is so recent that as yet there is little adjudication as to the rights and liability of travellers employing it upon the highway; but the trend of judicial authority seems to place the wheel on a plane of equality with other vehicles.

"The early advent of the bicycle met with stremuous opposition, both from pedestrians and agencies of the road, the former contending that it was a vehicle and should be excluded from the allewaik, and the latter asserting that it was an object of terroy, the use of which was perilous in that it frigitened horses, But by degrees this child of adversity began to be recognized by the court and its legal status to be established. Finally its paternity was established and it was paralles.

Although Blackstone, Coke, and other common law jurists never experienced the sensation of a spin on a bloycle, yet we look to the law of the mother country for the earliest cases involving the law of the wheel.

"The authorities, almost without exception, now recognize the bicycle as a "carriage" or "vehicle," entitled to the rights of carriages and vehicles in general, and no longer regard it as an obstruction to or an unreasomable use of the streets or roads, but rather a new and improved method of using the same, and "germane to their principal use as a pathway." One Taylor, an Englishman, was the first to take the bicycle into court, and the case of Taylor against Goodwin is a leading one. Mr. Goodwin so leading one, Mr. Goodwin so leading one mr. Good with sprinced on a certain road, in violation of a statute making the furio as driving of a "carriage upon the highway an offense." Upon the trial be did not deny the allegation of immaderate spect, but centended that the bicycle and that the mere fact that it had wheels did not make it a carriage any more than a whele as propels it.

Investigation discloses American and their the f

"In applying the established law of the road to the wheel, probably it is not entitled to the dignity of a carriage, and while there is no authority for the statement, it seems that the wheelman in riding on the road should be governed by the innuemerial usage and custom applicable to horsemen. It has been held that there is no law requiring a man on horseback to turn either to the right or to the left hand. He should be governed by his postions of prudence. A horseman should yield the travelled track to a vehicle where he can do so without peril.

"A bicycle and a horse can pass along a track much narrower than that required for carriages; they also occupy much less linear space. In both cases the control of the traveller is more absolute than in the case of horses attached

A SUMMART.

Summing up the law pertaining to bicycles in a general way, it may be said:

1. Municipal corporations or cities are liable to a bicyclist for injuries incurred by reason of defective roads (i. e., ungarded embankment, a deep cut, a large stone), provided he is not guilty of contributory negligence. A city is under no special obligation to wheelmen, and the defect must be such as to cause injury to vehicles in general. A bicyclist injured while riding on Sunday for pleasure or business cannot recover in states where Sunday Laws' are in force.

2. A wheelman has a right of action against the driver or owner of a vehicle who wilfully or fegligently causes a collision or damages his wheel while left standing by the street curb or roadide. It is the duty of a wheelman, however, to avert collisions, if possible, and he cannot recover damages if his own negligence is the proximate cause of the injury complained of.

2. A traveller riding on the left-hand side of the road probably assumes all risks and is prima facie guilty of negligence.

4. Vehicles going in the same direction

trian.

6. A bicyclist employing an immoderate rate of speed on a highway or street may be liable civilly or criminally in case of accident. If he recklessly runs his wheel against a pedestrain, he is liable for assult and battery. Recklessness will sometimes supply the place of criminal intent, and if a bicyclist kills a human being while going at a dangerous speed, he may be convicted of mansiaughter.

The term "immoderate rate of speed" cannot be accurately defined. It depends upon time, place, and circumstances. There is as yet no statutory or case law in the State of Michigan in regard to the bleycle. The common council of betroit passed an ordinance regulating the use of the wheel on the streets, but it was vetoed by the major.

The question, however, of whether improved methods of locomotion are admissible on public roads arose in Michigan as early as 1878, and the opinion of Judge Cooley in the case of Macumber vs. Nichols is of interest to all wheelmen, and although written long before the adoption of the bleycle, it seems to anticipate radical innovations in the methods of locomotion on the highway."

Don't sit down on the saddle when rid-ing over obstructions; lift yourself as much as possible by means of pedals and handlebars, and the result will be less regair bills.

To find gear of a wheel, multiply the diameter of rear wheel by the number of teeth in the crank sprocket wheel, and divide by the number of teeth in the sub-sprocket wheel. Another way: Divide the number of eeth in the crank sprocket wheel by the number in the hub-sprocket, and multiply the diameter of the rear wheel by his result.

The degree of hardness to which tires should be inflated is largely a matter of personal preference.

They should never be left soft enough costs for contempt of court, having failed stitution.

BRADLEY IN TROUBLE,

In Washington.

Detective A. M. Tomlinson left Friday night for Washington to bring back to Richmond Percy Bradley, formerly of this city, but now employed as a clerk in Newdecker's cigar store, near the corner of Twelfth and E streets, Northwest.

The charge against young Bradley is that of betraying Miss Mary Mounteastile, of Chesinut Hill, a daughter of Mr. H. A. Mounteastile, who is now an inmate of the Soldiers' Home.

Reports received from Washington yesterday state that Bradley expressed great surprise at being placed under arrest by Detectives Weedon and Horne, of Washington, and wait it was a scheme to make him marry a Richmond girl. He has retained Attorney Carrington to defend him, and will make a fight against being brought to Richmond, on the ground that the crime charged is not a criminal offence in the District of Columbia.

Miss Mounteastic's father states that for two years past Bradley has been very attentive to his daughter.
